Gender Balance of Children's books reviewed by five UK national newspapers in 2013

This file lists 2013's 1,906 children's books reviewed in the main sections of the six editions of each newspaper:

- Daily Mail, Daily Mail (Scotland), Mail on Sunday, Mail on Sunday (Scotland), Daily Express and Sunday Express

The five broadsheets were scanned:

- Regular dailies (Guardian, The Independent, Times, Telegraph)
- Regular Sundays (Observer, Sunday Times, Sunday Telegraph, Sunday Independent)
- Other: Financial Times, Scotsman, Herald, Herald Scotland, Scotland on Sunday, Times Scotland

Conclusions

Children's books are reviewed more than ever before and more and more of the interviews transformed into the reviews such as graphic novels, picture books and YA novels are being reviewed in broadsheets and tabloids such as Metro and Daily Mail. The gendering of books by YA novel readers may also well be relevant when it comes to which books are reviewed and how.

Gender Categories

The statistics that follow are for counting only one individual or group per book. Mixed or gender-neutral titles count for two sex categories. These tables also offer a rough idea of gendered representation in children's books, with books featuring boys/men/male characters being reviewed more than those featuring girls/women/female characters.
